HOMI KANGA, hails from Bombay. He began playing the violin at the age of seven. At 14 he began to study under Mehli Mehta. Later he joined the Paris Conservatoire and studied under Gabriel Bouillon. After obtaining the highest diploma from the Conservatoire, he became the first Indian to join a major symphony Orchestra—the London Philharmonica. Homi Kanga plays on a violin by GASPAR DA SALO made in 1560. Apart from being one of the first violins ever to be made, it is one of the finest violins in the world today. In 1951 he was a soloist with the B. B. C. and in 1952 won a prize at the Second International Wieniawski Violin Competition in Poland.

Later, he gave public recitals at the R.B.A. Galleries and Wigmore Hall. In 1960 he left the L.P.O. and became a free-lance player. In 1962 visited Bombay with the L.P.O. and on return to U.K. joined the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, leading the orchestra on several occasions.

In 1967 formed the Jupiter String Quartet which has numerous concerts to its credit.

He has established himself as a teacher, and today holds a distinguished place in the musical life of London.

It is interesting to note that apart from his musical talent, he also holds a University degree in Civil Engineering.
